Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 29 January 2007.
- 2a) ☐ This action is FINAL. 2b) ☒ This action is non-final.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ishihara et al. (US Patent 4,577,675) in view of Valle et al. (WO 99/28690) and Hirano et al. (US Patent 6,120,661).

With regards to claim 1, Ishihara et al. discloses a disc roll comprising a plurality of annular disc members 4 each defining a hole and having a peripheral surface, and a rotary shaft 1 fitted into the holes of the annular disc members by insertion, whereby the peripheral surface of the disc members serves as a conveying surface of the disc roll (col. 2, lines 50-66), wherein the disc members are ceramic segments (col. 2, lines 57-58). Although Ishihara et al. does not disclose the ceramic disc segments containing cordierite or an inorganic fiber and a binder, however it is known to use ceramic containing cordierite for such rolls as attested by Valle et al., see abstract. Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, to have used cordierite-containing ceramic in the roll of Ishihara et al., in order to produce rolls with increase resistance. Such cordierite-containing ceramic are typically formed from ceramic powder including inorganic fiber and binder as attested by Hirano et al., see column 13, lines 42-48. Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have formed such cordierite-containing ceramic rolls including an inorganic filler and a binder, in light of the teachings of Hirano et al., as is known in the art.

For claim 2, Applicant should note that the particular amount of cordierite is considered an obvious matter of design choice that will depend on the desired strength requirement for the rolls. Furthermore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have made the prior art roll at the claimed ranges since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 and 2 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
